Porter County Republicans The Eagle Eye

Volume 4, Issue 11

November 2021

Chairman's Comments

Fellow Republicans —

The beginning of November has truly been interesting and telling. What occurred in both Virginia and New Jersey reveals a lot about the thought process of American voters after a year of Democrat rule. Americans are clearly not interested in promoting extreme agendas. They want their police departments fully funded. They do not want divisive curriculum taught in our schools and they are very, very concerned about the rising cost of everything.

Unfortunately, it is also clear that the extreme left still isn't listening as they push pedal to the metal to enact extreme and damaging legislation. As to the cost of pursuing such an agenda? Inflation, debt and lack of productivity be damned. And, when it comes to families and individual liberty, government should control education, health and safety by fiat. Government, after all, They knows what's best when it comes to education and all the rest. Parents need to know their place.

In short, everything the Democrats mandating, both nationally and locally, is designed to change the way Americans live and conduct their lives. By making folks dependent on government, they achieve more power and control. We cannot, we must not allow this to happened.

We must act as a unified society to counter extremist mentality. Parents do have a voice in their children's education. Critical Race Theory is an abomination and must not be shoved down the throats of our children. We have a right and an obligation, to stand up for the children of our community. Our police must be fully funded and respected. Our elected officials need to observe fiscal responsibility and know that they serve the people, not the other way around.

The Republican Party stands for individual liberty, personal freedom, personal responsibility, free speech, fiscal responsibility, limited government, responsible government and a government that answers to the voters. Join with us to keep America true to its founding principles!

Finally, I want to thank all of you once again for the support you've shown the leadership team and for all you do for our party.

PORTAGE REPUBLICANS

Melissa Weidenbach, District Vice Chair

The Portage Republicans would like to announce their newest addition to the Portage District leadership team. On November 6th during a general precinct meeting, Austin Bonta, Portage District Chairman welcomed Melissa Weidenbach as his newly appointed District Vice Chair.

Melissa, who is a precinct committeeman for Portage Precinct 20, has resided in Portage for over 15 years. She currently holds the Treasurer's position with the Porter County Republican Women's club.

Chairman Bonta stated, "We have been steadily building the culture and structure of our Portage team, and Melissa exemplifies the leadership traits we strive for. She is highly organized, an excellent communicator, and tremendously creative. Most of all, she is dedicated to our party's mission and inspires those who she works with to do an outstanding job."

We can expect great things ahead for the Portage team.

WASHINGTON, DC— White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki addressed concerns over rising inflation Friday, noting that the impact of rising prices doesn't matter because there's nothing left on store shelves to buy.

"Rising prices would definitely be a problem if there were things like food, clothing, or medicine available for purchase," Psaki said. "As it stands right now, consumers really aren't paying higher prices because they're not able to purchase anything. People are reporting they've never saved so much money in their lives!"

Psaki said the impacts of inflation are of top concern to President Biden. "The president remembers a time when you could buy a sack of licorice at the general store and still get change back from a nickel," she said. "Rest assured, President Biden is devoting all of his remaining mental faculties to addressing this problem."

When asked about specific plans, Psaki noted that the President plans to flood the economy with trillions of dollars to help struggling families. "The President is committed to printing as much money as it takes to end this inflation crisis," she noted.

Psaki then addressed the topic of supply shortages, calling them a blessing in disguise for many Americans. "Many of us struggle with our weight, and food shortages are a great way to drop some extra pounds," she noted. "Plus, the money you save by not buying Christmas presents this year can be used to cover your increased tax bills next spring!"

Liberal Parent Trying To Figure Out How To Cheer For His Son Brandon

ST. LOUIS, MO—Local liberal Joe Bailey has for years enjoyed cheering on his son Brandon at his Little League soccer games, but lately that has proven difficult, since his cheering typically involves shouting the insurrectionist chant "Let's Go Brandon" from the stands.

"I try to be so careful, but every so often in the excitement, I let slip a 'Let's go Brandon!'" said Bailey. "Then all the parents join in chanting, the game devolves into fits of laughter, and all the Trump supporters are trying to give me a high-five. It's horrible!"

According to sources, Mr. Bailey has thought about changing his son's name to something like "Bandleigh" or "Braidlynio" to make things a bit easier.

"Woooo!" said Bailey as his son made a great play, trying desperately to avoid using the dreaded phrase. "Let's go... bud! Well played! Positive reinforcement!"

Just then, Brandon scored a goal, causing his dad to jump to his feet and involuntarily scream "LET'S GO BRANDON!", causing the entire crowd to join in.

Joe Bailey is now on 12 FBI watch lists.

Biden Wears Mask On Zoom Call In Case COVID Has Mutated Into A Computer Virus

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Joe Biden was seen wearing a mask in a climate summit with world leaders, despite his being vaccinated and despite the conference being virtual and held over Zoom. This has made some wonder if Biden even understands how a virus works, but Biden says he’s just being cautious.

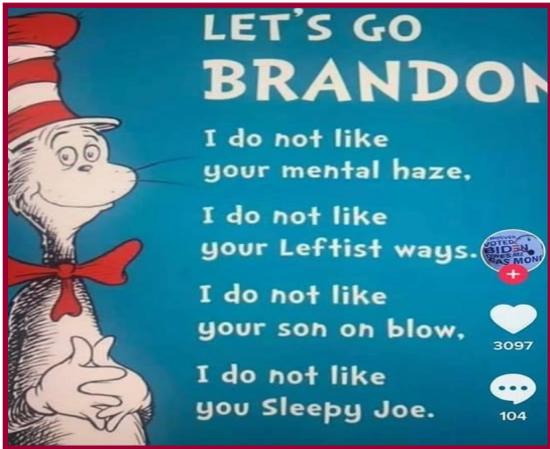

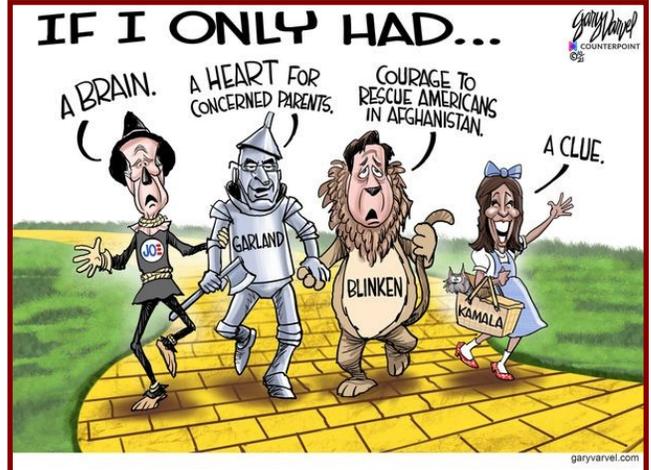

“We can’t let our guard down just because we’re vaccinated and alone in a room,” Biden told reporters with a megaphone while standing twenty feet away. “See, there is this little thing called a ‘computer virus.’ Ha, I bet you thought I was some out-of-touch boomer who doesn’t know about computers. Well, for one thing, I’m too old to be a boomer -- I’m the generation before that -- and I’ve used typewriters since I was a kid -- which is a lot like a computer before you attach the TV. So I know all about computers, and they get viruses. Maybe COVID. Who knows? Better to wear a mask around them.”

Doctor Fauci agreed with Biden’s assessment. “We haven’t done any studies about corona viruses becoming computer viruses and computer viruses transferring to humans,” Fauci said, “so we can’t rule that out. I would stay away from computers as much as possible, and if you are around a computer, put a mask over the part where the fan vents. And as I keep saying, if at all possible, please just lock yourself in a large footlocker in your basement, as that’s the safest way to ride out this pandemic.”

Others aren’t convinced and have made fun of Biden for his seemingly pointless mask-wearing with nicknames such as “Dumb Biden,” “Stupid Biden,” and “Biden -- Not a Smart Man.” Still, Biden persists with his extra caution and was last seen wearing a mask alone in the bathroom while fixing his hair. “Mirror Joe Biden could have COVID, for all I know,” he explained.
